Governor Sarah Palin

As your governor I receive letters and calls from Alaskans who have been victims of crime. Some of these individuals have endured physical assaults and have been placed in fear for their lives. They have lost family and friends to the violent acts of criminal offenders. Many have suffered the personal intrusion of mind and spirit by criminals whose transgressions have touched our children, our persons and our homes. I believe that it is important that professionals in our criminal justice system show compassion and understanding for victims of crime. I wish to commend Attorney General Colberg and the dedicated professionals of the Department of Law's 13 statewide district attorneys offices for demonstrating this compassion and understanding by making this handbook available as a resource to assist the victims of crime in Alaska.

Attorney General Talis J. Colberg

Crime victims have rights under the Alaska State Constitution and the Alaska State Statutes. Article I, Section 24 of the Alaska Constitution provides that crime victims have: the right to be protected from the accused; the right to confer with the prosecution; the right to be treated with dignity, respect and fairness; the right to timely disposition of their cases; the right to be informed; the right to be heard at certain proceedings; and the right to restitution. Other and more specific rights are provided by statute, particularly AS 12.61.010.

Some rights are automatic. Other rights must be explicitly asserted. This handbook explains both kinds of rights to crime victims and service providers. If you are a victim, this book is meant to help you. If you are a victim, then there are instances where you will need to affirmatively assert your rights in order for the law to apply. If a victim must affirmatively assert a right, then the reference in this handbook will be in italics, and it will begin with "Upon request, ..." For more specific information, contact the Alaska Office of Victims' Rights.

I would like to acknowledge the work of Cathy Satterfield, Victim Witness Coordinator for the Department of Law and the staff of the Office of Victims' Rights in preparing this handbook. I also acknowledge and reaffirm the ongoing efforts of district attorneys, victim/witness paralegals, and other professionals in the Department of Law's criminal division and thirteen statewide district attorney's offices as they prosecute crimes and protect and respect the rights of crime victims across the State of Alaska.

Overview

This document is intended to provide a brief overview of the rights of crime victims under Alaska's constitution and state statutes. The following discussion addresses the rights of crime victims and their families from the time charges are filed, through the trial, sentencing and post-conviction phases of the criminal justice process.

Victims' Rights under the Alaska Constitution

Article I, section 24 of the Alaska Constitution sets forth a framework for how the victims of crime should be engaged in the criminal justice process. Crime victims must be:

- Treated with dignity, respect and fairness
- Protected from the defendant through the court setting appropriate bail or conditions of release after arrest or summons until the end of trial or final disposition of the case, and in situations where the defendant, although convicted of the crime, is released pending appeal
- Allowed to speak with the prosecution
- Provided a timely disposition of the case after an arrest
- Provided information about and be allowed to attend all criminal or juvenile proceedings where the defendant has a right to be present
- Provided restitution from the defendant who is found guilty

Alaska Office of Victims' Rights

The State of Alaska has established a special office to assist crime victims: Alaska Office of Victims' Rights. The purpose of the office is to help victims of crime obtain the legal rights they have under Article 1, Section 24 of Alaska's Constitution and various Alaska state statutes with regard to their contacts with criminal justice agencies in this state. A victim of crime has the right to be informed about the Alaska Office of Victims' Rights during their first contact with law enforcement and the prosecution. [AS 12.61.010(a)(15)]. The Alaska Office of Victims' Rights is staffed by attorneys and available at no cost to victims.

Victims' Rights After a Crime has been Committed

After a crime is initially committed, the law provides for a number of rights related to basic safety and health needs for victims. These rights include the right to:

- Receive immediate medical assistance [AS 12.61.010(a)(7); AS 18.65.515(a)(3)].
- Transportation to a safe house or shelter [AS 18.65.515(a)(1)].
- Apply for a 72-hour domestic violence protective order [AS 18.66.110; AS 18.66.100(c)(1) – (5), (8) – (12), (16)].
- Be notified and appear at the defendant's arraignment or initial appearance before a magistrate or judge when bail conditions are set. [AS 12.30.010; AS 12.61.010(a)].

Crimes of Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence

Within the Department of Public Safety there has been established a Council of Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault. The council provides planning and coordination of services, crisis intervention and prevention programs to victims and their families for domestic violence, sexual assault. [AS 18.66.010].

The confidential communications between the victim of domestic violence or sexual assault and the counselor are privileged, with a few exceptions. [AS 18.66.200 - .250; AS 12.45.049].

Crimes of Sexual Assault

Victims of sexual assaults should obtain sexual assault examinations as soon as possible after the crime has occurred. These exams are provided at no cost to victims. [AS 18.68.040].

Upon request, in sexual assault cases where penetration was part of the criminal act, victims may ask the court to order the defendant to submit to a blood test to determine if the accused tests positive for HIV or the existence of other sexually transmitted diseases (STDs). This right exists seven days after an individual is arrested and charged with this crime by complaint, indictment, presentment or information filed with a magistrate or with the court. [AS 18.15.300(f)(1); AS 18.15.300 - .310]. If the defendant's blood test indicates exposure or infection by HIV or other STD, the victim is entitled to free counseling, testing and referral to appropriate health care facilities and support services at his or her request. [AS 18.15.310(h)].

Crimes of Domestic Violence & About Protective Orders

In cases of crimes involving domestic violence, a peace officer must protect the victim and the victim's family. Upon request, to prevent further violence, the peace officer should transport adult victims and family members to a shelter or safe house. [AS 18.65.515(a)(1)].

Peace officers can remove essential items such as clothing, medication and legal documents that belong to the victim. Peace officers can assist the victim and any of the victim's family members in obtaining medical treatment, either by contacting emergency medical services or by transporting the victim to a local medical facility. Peace officers should also notify victims of domestic violence of services available to them.

Victims of domestic violence have the right to petition the court for a protective order. Protective orders can include provisions that:

- Prohibit your abuser from threatening to commit or committing further acts of domestic violence
- Prohibit your abuser from stalking, harassing, or contacting you
- Remove your abuser from your residence
- Order your abuser to stay away from your residence, school, place of employment
- Prohibit your abuser from entering your vehicle or a vehicle you occupy
- Direct your abuser to surrender any firearm owned or possessed
- Request a peace officer to accompany you to your residence to ensure your safe possession of the residence, vehicle or to remove personal items from your residence
- Award temporary custody of a minor child to the petitioner
- Grant you possession and use of a vehicle and other essential personal effects
- Prohibit your abuser from consuming controlled substances
- Require your abuser to pay support for you or a minor child in your care if there is an independent legal obligation of your abuser to support you or the child
- Require your abuser to reimburse you for your expenses caused by domestic violence, including medical bills, and
- Order your abuser to participate in an intervention program for batterers

[AS 18.65.515(a)(1); AS 18.65.520].

A victim of domestic violence may seek a protective order against a household member. A parent, guardian or other representative may seek a protective order on behalf of a minor. A certified copy of an unexpired protective order issued in another jurisdiction and filed with the clerk of court in any judicial district in this state, has the same effect and must be enforced in the same manner as a protective order issued by a court of this state. [AS 18.66.100; AS 18.66.140].

Privacy Rights of Crime Victims

Victims of crime, like all Alaska citizens, are legally entitled to have their privacy protected under the Alaska Constitution. [Art. I, sec. 22]. If a defendant is charged with kidnapping or a sex crime (which includes: sexual assault, sexual assault of a minor, indecent exposure or kidnapping), the victim's name is not a public record and may not be used in court documents. Instead, the victim will be identified by his or her initials. The residence and business addresses and telephone numbers of a victim is confidential. [AS 12.61.140; AS 12.61.110; AS 12.61.120(a); AS 12.61.130(a)].

Victims have the right to decide whether or not to speak to the defense attorney. Victims of sexual offenses also have the right to file written notice that they do not want to be contacted by the defense attorney or other person acting on behalf of the defendant. [AS 12.61.125(a)(1)].

Upon request, if the victim permits the defense attorney an interview, the victim may have the prosecuting attorney or another person present.

Upon request, the victim may obtain a copy of any electronic recording made by the defense. [AS 12.61.120; AS 12.61.125].

If a victim submits an application to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board, the application is confidential. [AS 18.67.030(c)].

Crime Victims and Bail Review

After being arrested and charged with a crime, up to and through trial, the defendant can ask the court to be released on bail. The victim may appear at these bail hearings. The victim is not required to attend unless the victim's testimony is needed. The victim may wish to participate by telephone due to distance, disability or for safety reasons. If the victim would like to attend by telephone, the victim should contact the District Attorney's Office in advance of the hearing to make the request.

At the bail hearing, based on the circumstances of the case, a judge has broad discretion to accept or reject a bail release request. If the victim has specific concerns or requests for bail conditions, the victim should contact the District Attorneys' Office in advance of the bail hearing. For matters involving domestic violence and sexual assault, the court must consider the victim's safety in deciding whether or not to release the defendant. A victim's safety should be considered before a defendant is released in stalking and sexual assault cases. If a domestic violence defendant is released from custody, victims are entitled to receive a copy of the conditions of the accused's release. [Alaska Constitution, Article 1, section 24; AS 12.61.010(a) (2); AS 12.30.027; AS 12.30.027(a); AS 12.30.025; AS 12.30.029(a); AS 12.30.027(d) (1) and (2)].

Victims should receive notice of any cancellation of a hearing or court proceeding in which the victim has been subpoenaed to testify. Victims that cooperate with law enforcement and prosecution efforts should receive information regarding available protection and should receive protection from harm or threats of harm related to that cooperation. Types of protection could include protective orders, assistance in obtaining personal belongings, transportation to a safe home or shelter and medical treatment.

Crime victims may also contact the Alaska Department of Corrections to enroll in VINE (Victim Information and Notification Everyday) VINE, is a free, anonymous, computerized notification system maintained by the Alaska Department of Corrections, to notify victims and others if the defendant is being transferred, released or escapes from custody. The contact number for the VINE system is 1-800-247-9763. The website is www.vinelink.com. [AS 12.30.010(a)(3); AS 12.61.010(a)(4); AS 12.61.050].

Victims' Rights at Trial and Other Criminal Proceedings

Victims of crimes have the right to be present during any proceeding in the prosecution and sentencing of a defendant if the defendant has a right to be present. Upon request, if the crime is a felony or crime involving domestic violence, the prosecuting attorney shall make reasonable effort to confer with victims about their testimony before a defendant's trial. In addition to receiving notice and the right to attend trial, a victim may be introduced by the prosecuting attorney to the jury as part of the state's opening statement at trial.

A crime victim may also be called as a witness at trial. Being called as a witness and subject to cross-examination can be difficult, but remain calm and try to answer the questions as honestly and simply as possible. Victims' support groups or advocates are available and helpful. Victims should be aware that they cannot be required to submit to a psychiatric examination unless their psychiatric or psychological condition is an element of the crime charged, or they suffer from a continuing psychological or psychiatric condition that resulted from the crime charged. Absent a specific finding by the court of relevance, evidence of the past sexual conduct of a victim is not admissible.

Remember, with a few exceptions, the confidential communications between the victim of domestic violence or sexual assault and the counselor are privileged. [AS 18.66.200 - .250; AS 12.45.049].

Employers may not punish or threaten to punish a victim because a victim is subpoenaed or requested by a prosecuting attorney to attend a court proceeding for the purpose of giving testimony. [AS 12.61.010; AS 12.61.015; AS 12.61.017; AS 12.45.042; AS 12.45.045(a); AS 47.12.110(b)].

To check the status of a criminal matter or next court date, the victim may contact a victim/witness paralegal at the District Attorney's Office. Persons may also check the status of a criminal matter or the next court date by using the Alaska Court System's CourtView Search website at www.courtrecords.alaska.gov/pa/pa.urd/pamw6500.display

Victims' Rights Regarding Psychiatric Commitment of the Accused

Title 12, chapter 47 of the Alaska statutes addresses insanity and competency to stand trial. If a defendant has been committed to the custody of the commissioner of health and social services, the victim is entitled to notice of any pending or actual change to the defendant's status. For any proposed change of status the victim has the right to submit a written statement or to appear before the court. Victims have the right to be notified if the accused is found to be not guilty by reason of insanity. Upon request and providing contact information to the Parole Board, a crime victim will be notified of hearings related to special medical parole.

[AS 12.47.090(a)(1)-(5), (b) and (e); AS 12.61.010(a)(11) and (12)].

Victims' Rights at Sentencing

- The court cannot reduce a defendant's punishment based upon the failure of a crime victim to appear or testify. [AS 12.55.151].
- For felony offenders, a probation officer's presentence report shall include a victim impact statement reporting any financial, emotional and medical effects of the offense upon the victim; the victim's need for restitution and other information required by the court. [AS 12.55.022; AS 12.61.010(a)(9)].
- For misdemeanor case, no presentence report is written but a victim may address the court at sentencing. [AS 12.61.010(a)(9)]. Victims should let the prosecutor know they would like to speak.
- All victims may submit to the court a written statement that the victim believes is relevant to the sentencing decision and may give oral presentation to the court at the sentencing hearing. If the victim declines to make a statement, the victim's advocate from the Alaska Office of Victims' Rights may submit a written statement or oral presentation at the hearing on behalf of the victim. [AS 12.55.023 (b); AS 24.65.110(b)].
- On a felony conviction, the court shall specifically make a finding regarding the financial, emotional and medical effects of the offense on the victim as well as the victim's need for restitution. [AS 12.55.025(a)(5)(A)-(B)].
- All victims have the constitutional right to confer with the prosecution. [Art. I, section 24]
- Upon request by the victim in a felony or domestic violence case, the prosecutor shall confer with the victim about the victim's testimony prior to trial. [AS 12.61.015(a)(1)].
- Upon request in domestic violence cases, the prosecutor shall confer with the victim about proposed plea agreements prior to their acceptance. [AS 12.61.015(a)(4)].
- Upon request, the prosecutor shall provide the victim with the address and phone number of the office preparing the pre-sentence report. [AS 12.61.015(a)(2)(C)].
- Upon request, before sentencing, the prosecutor shall provide the victim with portions of the pre-sentence report outlining the summary of the offense prepared by the Department of Corrections;

the defendant's version of the offense; all statements and summaries of statements of the victim and DOC's sentence recommendation. [AS 12.55.023(a)(1)-(4)].

Victims' Rights Related to Restitution

As a matter of public policy, the law favors requiring criminals to compensate victims for the injuries and damages they have received. Victims have a constitutional right to restitution from the defendant.

In a criminal case, victims should contact the victim/witness paralegal at the District Attorney's Office regarding their restitution claim. The criminal restitution can only be for actual monetary expenses or losses, not for pain and suffering (although that may be available in a civil lawsuit). [AS 12.55.045(a)]. A criminal restitution order from the judge becomes a civil judgment that accrues interest and remains enforceable even after the defendant's probation ends. [AS 12.55.045(l)]. The Office of the Attorney General Collection Unit provides limited free collections assistance. For more information, please call (907) 269-5205.

Alaska's victims' rights statutes specifically provide that victims of crimes have the right to be notified of the procedure to be followed to apply for and receive any compensation under AS 18.67 from the Violent Crimes Compensation Board. The VCCB is a "payer of last resort", so only losses not compensated through other sources (insurance or civil lawsuit, etc.) are eligible. [AS 18.67.090]. For VCCB claims, victims need to apply timely, fill out an application and provide documentation.

A restitution order does not limit any civil liability of the defendant for his or her conduct. Victims must provide the documentation supporting the claim of restitution in a timely manner. If a victim is not "made whole" by the restitution in the criminal case, the victim may choose to pursue a civil lawsuit. A referral for an attorney may be obtained from the Alaska State Bar Association. [AS 12.55.045(a)(1); AS 12.61.010(a)(5); AS 18.67.175; AS 12.55.045(b)].

Victims' Rights Post-Sentencing

Victims' rights continue after a convicted criminal has been sentenced. Upon request, victims of felonies or domestic violence crimes are entitled to be notified by the prosecuting attorney of the final disposition (sentencing) of a case. [AS 12.61.015(a)(3)]. All victims are entitled to notice if an appeal is filed. [AS 12.61.010(a)(2)].

The defendant or the prosecutor may ask the trial judge to have sentencing moved to a three-judge panel. [AS 12.55.175]. Victims have the right to attend the three-judge panel proceedings.

Upon request, a victim will be notified if the defendant escapes from custody or is released on furlough, early release or for any other release. Victims of domestic violence crimes are entitled to automatic notification of escape. Upon request after a conviction of the defendant, a victim is entitled to information from the prosecutor about the defendant's complete conviction history. For notification, victims must maintain a current address with the Department of Correction. [AS 33.30.013(a)-(c); AS 12.61.015(a)(3), AS 12.61.010(a)(2), AS 33.30.013; AS 12.61.010(a)(10)].

Defendants convicted of misdemeanor crimes are not supervised while on probation but defendants convicted of felony crimes are supervised by the Department of Corrections. A defendant who violates probation may be brought back before the court on a Petition to Revoke Probation. Under the Victim Rights Act, the victim has the right to notice and opportunity to speak at any probation revocation proceeding involving conditions of release or sentencing (called "disposition" in probation proceedings).

Victims' Rights Pertaining to Post-Sentencing Modifications

Victims are entitled to address the court at a defendant's request to modify or reduce their sentence.

Upon request and providing address information to the Department of Correction, the Department shall provide notice of the prisoner's request and send the victim a copy of any motions to modify or reduce sentence and inform the person of his or her:

1. Rights under this section
2. The deadline for receipt of written comments, and
3. The hearing date and the court's address

Victims must update the Department of Corrections with address information.

Upon request, the Department of Corrections shall notify the victim of hearings to consider or review discretionary parole. Victims must notify the Parole Board of their address information. Victims may write to the Parole Board or attending the hearing.

Before granting probation to persons convicted of domestic violence, the court shall consider the safety and protection of the victim and any member of the victim's family. The court may impose any other conditions of probation necessary to protect the victim and any members of the victim's family or to rehabilitate the defendant. If the victim has specific concerns or requests for probation conditions, the victim should contact the District Attorneys' Office in advance of the sentencing. [AS 12.55.088(d)(e) and (h); AS 12.61.010(a); AS 33.16.120; AS 12.55.101(a)].

Victims' Rights and Executive Clemency

In 2007 legislation was passed which requires the governor to refer applications for executive clemency (including pardons) to the state parole board at least 120 days prior to any grant of clemency. The parole board is required to notify the Department of Law, the Office of Victims' Rights and the victim of a crime involving domestic violence, arson in the first degree, or a crime against a person. Crimes against a person include homicides, assaults, sexual offenses and all other crimes set forth in title 11, chapter 41 of the Alaska statutes. This legislation (House Bill 69) was sponsored by Anchorage Representative Ralph Samuels and was signed into law by Governor Sarah Palin on February 22, 2007. SEE AS 33.20.080(a)].

Access to Law Enforcement Records

Alaska's public record law states that "unless specifically provided otherwise, the public records of all public agencies are open to inspection by the public ..." There are a number of exceptions to the general rule and one of those exceptions applies to "records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes ..." This exception protects from disclosure the production of information that could reasonably be expected to interfere with enforcement proceedings, deprive a person of a fair trial or impartial adjudication, to name just a few examples. This same provision also protects from disclosure information that "could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of a ... victim, ....” [AS 40.25.110(a); 12o(a)(6) and (a)(6)(C)].

Victims’ Rights in Juvenile Justice Cases

One of the goals of the Juvenile Justice System is to ensure that victims of crimes committed by juveniles are afforded the same rights as victims of crimes committed by adults. [AS 47.12.010(b)(12)]. So victims generally have the same legal rights and should refer to the rights outlined above. But the procedure and terms are different in a juvenile justice case; special provisions for victims’ legal rights in juvenile proceedings are described below. When the defendant is under 18 years of age, the case is called a juvenile delinquency proceeding. [AS 47.12]. The defendant is referred to as the “minor”. [AS 47.12.020]. The case is confidential, but the victim may attend and participate at all the proceedings that the minor has the right to attend. [Alaska Constitution Art. I, sec. 24; AS 12.61.010(a)(1)(B), AS 47.12.110(b)].

The court may order the minor and the minor’s parent to make suitable restitution to the victim. [AS 47.12.120(b)(4)]. The court may not refuse to make an order of restitution to the victim. [AS 47.12.120(b)(4)(A)]. An order of restitution by the minor or minor’s parents to the victim becomes enforceable as a civil judgment even after the period of probation or commitment has expired (similar to an adult court judgment). [AS 47.12.170]. The Department of Law can collect the restitution on behalf of the victim unless the victim wishes to pursue the restitution without the Department. [AS 47.12.170(b)]. If the victim chooses to and needs an attorney to enforce the order civilly, reasonable attorney fees and collection costs shall also be awarded. [AS 47.12.170(a)].

Victims of crimes committed by minors are eligible for Violent Crimes Compensation to the same degree as those victims of adult defendants because the award is based on the crime and the losses incurred not the age or status of the defendant. [AS 18.67.101].
